A Message From Paul Humphrey:

“I have been developing this program for over 10 years, this has been the 4th year I have traveled throughout the US, doing a total of 26 Clinics. It's amazing the horses and people that I have met, and the improvements I see at each clinic. I truly believe that the horsemanship I teach is what allows each person to be successful with my program.

During my barrel clinics, I make sure to take the time with each rider to help them and their horse to understand each drill and the benefit of how that drill will help them have success in the barrel pattern. I believe not only does the rider need confidence, but the horse needs confidence also. I strive to teach that it's not about turning the barrel; it's about moving around the barrel correctly. No Gimmicks, No special bit, just basic horsemanship.

At Breaking the Mold Clinics with Paul Humphrey, you will work on:

- Correct body control during my drills. This really allows the horse to understand how to use their body correctly and takes away the uncertainty and gives the horse confidence in the barrel run. Correct body control around the barrel also helps the horse to relax around the barrel which helps them to understand the barrel is a good place to be.
- You learn the importance of your hand position to obtain correct body control of your horse during slow work.
- You learn how to use both hands. There are two sides to a horses body and they are connected. Both sides must understand what to do and follow each other. This can only be achieved successfully by using both hands.
